

The Festival Opens

Although there is fear since Lady Mara's escape last year, Captivenia has again open the gates for the annual Festival of Maidens. Maidens from all across the land have travelled to participate in this event.

Sally (a maiden) is quoted to have said: "Please stop talking to me.....I'm trying to listen to the Chancellor.

Captivenia Without a Ruler

Princess Leisaura has relinquished the throne of Captivenia due to her own kingdom of Meridianas requesting her return, and Chancellor Awryndel has been appointed as Keeper of Captivenia. Since the throne remains empty, ArchLord Valerian will remain in the land to protect its people. In addition, Valerian has been gifted the discernment of the King's will for Captivenia

Honouring the King

The people of Captivenia gathered to honour the King and thank him for all of the gifts he has bestowed upon us. A song was sung, which upon completion the entrance of both Princess Geneve and Lady Amalyah occurred. It was revealed that Commander Justin (Amassador Ronwyn and Chancellor Arwyndel's father) was the original Keeper of Captivenia, and Valerian had requested that every seventh night, when the sun sets, that all might come together to honour the King. The Fire of the King was lit by Sir Festus, gifts were brought up and prayers said. Needless to say this was an evening of reflection upon that which the King has given

PROVERBS 11:24

One person gives freely, yet gains even more; another withholds unduly, but comes into poverty

Classifieds

Available: Courses in fire-throwing safety now offered by Lady Christine. Be advised that a lack of minions cannot be guaranteed.

Caution: Reported sighting of a Russian spy. Be on high alert for any suspicious activity.

Wanted: All things Red

~ Gretchen

Weather

The temperature may climb as high as 22 degrees centigrade on this lovely day, with thunderstorms being a strong possibility. Bellesera are encouraged to keep their eyes to the skies, so they may warn Maidens to don their raingear in time to avoid complete and utter soakage. All are encouraged to stay well hydrated, to keep morale high, and the death rates low!